**EXSTIMONT OF SURVEYOR FORSTTH AND MR. W. H. PHILLIPS.**

EXPLANATION AS TO HOW ASSESSMENTS ARE MADE—METHOD OF ESTIMATING QUANTITIES OF EXCAVATIONS, NUMBER OF TREES, ETC.—THE RECOLLECTIONS OF MR. W. H. PHILLIPS.

Q. Now, will you tell me how you managed to make the assessment of Massachusetts averable, when the avenue is not finished! A. I got the estimate of the balance between Twenty-second street from Mr. Barney of the cost of the sodding and other work to be done, and carriageway to be laid, so that in that case you did not wait until the street was completed, and got the actual cost; but you made your assessments in advance of the finishing of the street, is not that so! A. That is so.

Q. Now, did you make the assessment against the property of Mr. Riggs, Mr. George W. Riggs, on that street! I do not know what street the does live on.

The Wincess. Wherever he had property—Yes, sir.

DISTRICT INVESTIGATION.

Yes, sir. I can only say that Mr. Cluse, about a year ago, was doing some work for me professionally, and had harpe of some ware house when the street is 1 was then building, and I had cocasion to see him frequently. I do not think I ever spoke to him on the subject of the board, according to my recollection, but on one occasion. I remember the sale of the board was getting along; how they were succeeding, and so on. I remember his answer at the time impressed me. He said not at all well. I innocently asked him why. He said, "We like the board was getting along it have you beard in the said the Board of Public Works consisted."

Nearly all the important business and all the essential matters are performed by the vice president of the board. We are on band to do certain things that we are instructed to do—something to that effect. I said, why have you not meetings, no regular meetings! He said, "We have no record worthy of the name. I believe there is a thing they call the record, but there is no such thing as I call a record." He said the system was a psculiar one, and he did

The Witness. Wherever he had property—
Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know of any case where you changed your assessments after you had made them; found they where too large; and have given statements to property-holders that their assessments where erroneous? A. Really, I cannot call to mind now; there may be.
Q. I mentioned Mr. Riggs because I thought, perhaps, that would enable you to remember.
The Witness, Mr. Winter, have you any mak!

Mr. Winter. There were some streets.

The Witness. I have no recollection of any, except it might be perhaps on C or D street; probably.

not press the matter.

Q. Do you know any other streets where seesaments have been made against the property-owners before the street had been completed! A. There has been an assessment made on Nineteenth street. The parking has been done: that is all. been done; that is all.

Do you know any other street where that been done! A. I think not. I have no recollection of any other.

Q. Do you know of any case where you have made assessments against property which you ought not to have made! A. I do not. Q. How do you manage it about the trees—the number of the trees that are on the street or on an avenue—a great many of these have not been planted yet? A. That is the business of the auditor. I only get the bills from the auditor. They allow a tree, I think, to every auditor. They allow a tree, I think, to every twenty feet, so that if you take the whole length of the avenue and divide it up by twenty you get the number of trees.

Q. That puts trees at all the street-crossings, and then when you come to one of those angular spaces you plant trees clear across that, do you not! That is to say, there are imaginary trees furnished, and which are charged for at the rate of six or twelve dollars a tree! A. I have nothing to do with that. Q. Is not that so! A. It may be so, but I Q. as not that sor A. it may be so, but I have nothing to do about that.
Q. What is your best impression? A. To count them, as I say, taking the whole length from the map, of course it may be so.
Q. Do you not think that is the fact? A. I for not know to that do not know, indeed. It may be so, If they take the whole length of the avenue and divide it by twenty, to get the number of trees, one of the trees might fall in with some of the Q. Is that the way to do it? A. There is no her way that it can be done.

Q. That is the way—about the way it is done? A. Yes, sir, I think so.
Q. Who furnished the auditor with the cost of these streets? A. The engineer's department. I suppose all the work of construction comes from the engineer's department, and then all the other incidental expenses come from the pay-rolls of the parties employed there as superintendents. Q. Have you looked over East Capitol street! A. No, str.

Q. I asked you once about the curbing when you were on the stand before! A. The curb of that street is exactly right—9,015 feet or 9,005 feet. The whole of the side footways were measured by my assistant, Mr. Wilson. It was not entirely complete, so it required remeas-threment afterward.

Q. You know that curbing is measured correctly? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Unfortunately, the street is charged with a great deal more than that? A. I know all about that.

Q. How is that? A. I have nothing whatever to do in relation to that. There has been some 9,000 feet more of the old corporation curbing taken, and some curbing put in place of the parking, and probably some of the curb may have been taken up and used by different changes of the grade, or something of that kind, but 9,015 feet is the actual amount there O. There is no controversy about that, but

A. Yes, sir; that is eo.

Q. And that curbing has been hauled away, and used elsewhere? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And these people on East Capitol street have been assessed for til. A. Yes, sir.
Q. How about the grading? It seems to me you made some measurements for the grading there! A. I made about 30,000 yards on that street entirely.

Q. You measured the whole of it? A. Yes,

Q. From N to M! A. Yes, sir. Q. And somebody has got pay here twice! A. I know nothing about that. I only know what is under my own signature there.

is under my own signature there.

Q. How did you make that measurement of the grading? A. From my general knowledge of the street.

Q. Did you put any levels on? A. Not one.

Q. Had no cross-sections? A. No, sir.

Q. You made the best guess you could? A. Well, sir; I guess it was pretty near the thing.

Q. You made the best guess you could! A. Yes, sir. if you choose to say so. res, sir; if you choose to say so.

By the Chairman: Q. You were superintentent of assessments! A. No, air.

Q. Havn't you the direction the assessnents? A. I make all the assessments, and the record of all the lots and lands of the whole District of Columbia are in my office— the sizes of all the lots, consequently all the official papers are there, and I make them in in consequence of that.

Q. In making up the amount the Government is to pay on any avenue, and the method of measuring that avenue, together with the cross streets—the intersecting streets—from whom did you receive instructions, if from anybody † A. I never got any instructions from any person, except that I was directed to go and point out this work belonging to the United States to Mr. Samo. Q. I know; but what I went to get at, Mr. Forsyth, is this. How did the Board of Public Works and the Government of the United States arrange as to the proper proportion that should be charged to each? A. I cannot in-Q. You do not know? A. No, sir; except the regular custom was adopted. I do not know by what method or how they arranged it. Mr. Cluss has made a statement there the other day in relation to some work on Pennsyl wania avenue and H street. He stated that made an error there. Well, the error warmade, it is true, but it was by not deduction Well, the error was the amount of yards that was occupied by the railroad, which amounted to the difference. When my attention was called to it I had it By Mr. Mattingly: Q. Then it was not as error in the measurement, but an omission in failing to deduct the amount occupied by the Failroad track? A. That is it; also down on B street north, between First and Third streets. It was a mere clarical error, as the committee an see by reference to this book. The square feet in that street were added by my to be 89,563, instead of 23,838. It made a difference of some three or four hundred yards; that is all. In relation to New Hampshire avenue the voucher I had from New Hampshire avenue I got from the engineer's office—the amount that was to be charged in Hulse's work, which

Q. About M street! A. On M street my measurement as assessed was casely right; the figures were never changed, as Mr. Barney stated when he went out. Mr. Cluss made a mistake there in taking the street as 32 feet wide instead of 42½ feet; that is about the dif-ference that he says there is in the street.

MR. WINTERS RECALLED. By Mr. Stewart: Q. Do you know whether the people of East Capitol street by this error have been overcharged or not! Have you figured it up so as to ascertain! A. I figured it myself some weeks ago, just before I was called up here. While the property-holders have been overcharged for this curb, they are indebted now to the Board of Public Works over $1.000 for the parking: for the trees that over $3,000 for the parking; for the trees that were put in there and never put in the assess-ments. The assessments were made previous ments. The assessments were made previous to that time.

Q. Indebted after having deducted that error?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. So that they have not been really over-charged? A. No, sir; they really owe the board now some $3,000.

Q. This parking on the street, you say, was never included in the assessment. That work has actually been done, and is there new! A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Hamilton: Q. They are liable to be assessed for that! A. They can be assessed for that, I presume. I do not know what the ar-rangement is about that. Q. You mean that will be equivalent to the error in the overcharge for exeavation toof A. I do not know anything about exeavation. I am only speaking of the curbing that was overcharged.

For the destruction of Rosches, Water Bag., Float, Moth, Anta, &c.: sold in any quantity from an ounce to the barrel; much cheaper than that sold in little bottles; p. rfeetly harmless to all except MR. PHILLIPS RECALLED.

By the Chairman: Q. Mr. Cluss wanted us to ask you a question to some conversation you had with him about a year ago as to a matter connected with the Board of bruggist, 637 Penn. avenue.
